

Text: Children of Blood and Bone

Page 110

I don't know what to say

Ba mi soro

Help me

I'm scared

Help me

Please

My prayers

The pain

Gone

I sit

With the burst of wind in the air you'd think the... it's...

I don't know what to say.

"Ba mi soru."

Mama says you're better off in her company than in the... much she could do... Right now, I just want to...
that someone is... there.

"Roo mi loo," I pray instead. Help me. I know it sounds like a... dealer, so much more like my... Mama Agha says you've...
Baba agrees, but... I'm scared. This is too important. I don't...
to screw it up."

Saying it out loud makes the fear tangible, a new weight hanging... in the air. I couldn't even protect Baba. How am I supposed to... make it?

But as the... sense of comfort. The...
that Oka... adds only know there... way I can get through this without...

"Just help me," I pray. Please. And...
Baba safe. No matter what happens, just... and Mama Agha...
pray.

...ing what he... how my head. Though stiff, I almost... feel like I can see my prayers drifting to the sky. I hold on to the brief...
moment of contentment... above the pain, the...
... it and... arms, rocking me to...

... something feels off...
... to find Natlan...
... forest is gone, no trees, no moss. Instead, I sit...
... reeds whistling with the burst of wind in the air.